

On Friday 27th June, 5 pupils and 2 members of staff went to New Hall School in Chelmsford for a French and Spanish A-level taster day. On arrival, pupils were treated to a breakfast of croissants and fruit juice before being taken on a tour of the school by pupils of the school - all in French or Spanish of course. During the day pupils took part in various activities such as cooking in their dedicated languages food technology rooms, intense grammar sessions, and sample A-level level lessons. French students took part in a debate about mobile phones in school and Spanish pupils had to dress up to learn about festivals. The day was rounded off with a talk from the Headteacher about the bursaries, scholarships and grants that are available to pupils to study A-level French or Spanish at New Hall. The pupils were engaged throughout the day and had chance to show off their excellent language skills. They were a credit to our school.
